Reels Script Templates

10 fill-in-the-blank reel scripts for product brands, service businesses and personal brands

How to use these

Every template below has three parts — Hook (first 1–3 seconds, stops the scroll), Body (the actual value or story), and CTA (what you want them to do next). Fill in the blanks, adjust the tone to sound like you, and shoot. Each one includes a worked example so you can see it in action before you write your own.

1. Product Launch Reel

Goal: Announce something new and create urgency.

Hook: "We just dropped _____."

Body: Show it in use / show it close-up. "It does _____, and it solves _____." Mention one standout detail.

CTA: "_____ to get yours before _____."

Example:

Hook: "We just dropped our winter collection." Body: Quick cuts of the pieces on models. "Every piece is hand-finished in our Chennai studio, and this drop only has 40 pieces total." CTA: "Tap the link in bio before it sells out — last drop went in 6 hours."

2. Testimonial / Social Proof Reel

Goal: Build trust using someone else's words.

Hook: "This is why we do what we do."

Body: Screen-record or read out a real review/DM. "_____ came to us with _____, and here's what changed."

CTA: "Want a result like this? _____."

Example:

Hook: "This is why we do what we do." Body: Text-on-screen of a client DM: "I finally feel confident posting after working with them." Voiceover: "She came to us overwhelmed with content, and in 4 weeks she had a system that actually worked." CTA: "Want the same? DM us 'START' and we'll walk you through it."

3. Educational / How-To Reel

Goal: Teach one small, specific thing well.

Hook: "Here's how to _____ in under 30 seconds."

Body: 3 quick steps, on-screen text for each. Keep every step to one sentence.

CTA: "Save this so you don't lose it."

Example:

Hook: "Here's how to write a hook that actually stops the scroll." Body: "1. Ask a question they're already asking themselves. 2. Say something slightly controversial. 3. Promise a specific, small result." CTA: "Save this so you don't lose it."

4. Behind-the-Scenes Reel

Goal: Build familiarity and trust by showing the process.

Hook: "What actually happens before _____ reaches you."

Body: Fast cuts of the real process — making, packing, prepping, building. Let it feel unpolished and real.

CTA: "Follow along — we post the process every week."

Example:

Hook: "What actually happens before your order reaches you." Body: Cuts of fabric being cut, stitched, packed, labeled. No music breaks — just raw process footage. CTA: "Follow along — we post the process every week."

5. Myth-Busting Reel

Goal: Correct a common misconception in your industry — positions you as the expert.

Hook: "Everyone thinks _____. Here's why that's wrong."

Body: State the myth clearly, then explain the actual truth in one or two sentences. Keep it simple, not technical.

CTA: "Follow for more things nobody tells you about _____."

Example:

Hook: "Everyone thinks more ad spend automatically means more sales. Here's why that's wrong." Body: "If your offer or targeting is off, more budget just means losing money faster. Budget amplifies what's already working — it doesn't fix what isn't." CTA: "Follow for more things nobody tells you about running ads."

6. Before/After Reel

Goal: Show a visible transformation or result.

Hook: "_____ before vs. after _____."

Body: Show the before, then the after — let the visual do the talking. Minimal text needed.

CTA: "Want this for yourself? _____."

Example:

Hook: "This kitchen, before vs. after 3 weeks." Body: Cluttered, dated kitchen → clean renovated shot. No voiceover needed, just the reveal. CTA: "Want this for your space? Link in bio for a free consult."

7. Day-in-the-Life Reel

Goal: Humanize your brand and build connection.

Hook: "A day in my life running _____."

Body: 4–5 quick moments across the day — the mundane and the exciting both. Keep clips to 2–3 seconds each.

CTA: "What do you want to see more of? Tell us below."

Example:

Hook: "A day in my life running a 6-table café." Body: 6am prep, morning rush, quiet afternoon lull, closing checklist — quick cuts with simple on-screen captions for each. CTA: "What do you want to see more of? Tell us below."

8. Listicle / Tips Reel

Goal: Deliver quick, saveable value.

Hook: "_____ things I wish I knew before _____."

Body: 3–5 numbered tips, one per on-screen card. Keep each tip under 10 words on-screen, expand slightly in voiceover.

CTA: "Save this list — you'll want it later."

Example:

Hook: "5 things I wish I knew before starting a business in Chennai." Body: "1. Local WhatsApp groups outperform paid ads early on. 2. ... [continue through 5]" CTA: "Save this list — you'll want it later."

9. Trend-Jack Reel

Goal: Ride a trending audio/format while staying relevant to your brand.

Hook: Use the trending audio's natural hook/beat drop as your visual cue.

Body: Map the trend's format onto your actual product/service/story — don't force it if it doesn't fit naturally.

CTA: "Tag someone who needs to see this."

Example:

Hook: Trending "expectation vs. reality" audio and text format. Body: "Expectation: DIY-ing your own Meta ads. Reality: _____" (show the chaos, then your service as the fix). CTA: "Tag the business owner who needs this."

10. CTA-Driven Sales Reel

Goal: Direct, no-nonsense push toward a purchase or booking.

Hook: "If you've been putting off _____, this is your sign."

Body: State the offer clearly. One or two reasons to act now (limited stock, deadline, bonus). No fluff.

CTA: "_____ before _____ — link in bio."

Example:

Hook: "If you've been putting off booking your festive shoot, this is your sign." Body: "We have 4 slots left this month, and festive season books out fast every year." CTA: "DM 'BOOK' before slots run out — link in bio too."

A few notes before you shoot

- Hooks live or die in the first word, not the first sentence. Cut anything before the hook — no logo intro, no "hey guys."
- Match energy to platform norms. Reels reward pace — if a clip doesn't earn its place, cut it.
- One CTA per Reel. Don't stack "follow, comment, and check the link" — pick the single most important action for that specific post.
- Reuse these templates monthly. Swap the topic, keep the structure — consistency in format is what builds audience habit, even as the content itself changes.
